Dear colleague,

I was raised to believe you can accomplish anything you set your mind to. My journey in life and in sports has taught me the importance of perseverance. I remain guided by this philosophy through these challenging and surreal times.

Many of us want to make a difference right now—and I believe each of us can do our part to make Colorado a better place. Certainly, the work we do each day to serve our fellow Coloradans is one way we make a difference, but there are many other ways we can give back. You can make another essential contribution to our community by donating to our state employee charitable effort, the Colorado Combined Campaign. Please join me in supporting the CCC this year. The generous donations made by our state employees benefit hundreds of nonprofit organizations each year. These organizations are essential to the progress of our beautiful state and likely need these resources now more than ever

A strength of the CCC is the choice you have as a donor. You can decide what amount to give (there is no minimum). You select who to give to (more than 500 Colorado nonprofits have applied and been vetted). You choose how to give (including through an easy payroll contribution). You're empowered to participate. As a former high school basketball coach, I know that there's power in the collective, too. When we all give and do our part, we can achieve big things.

Visit the CCC at www.coloradocombinedcampaign.org to learn more and make your donation online. Look for news of your department's campaign sometime this fall and participate. As state employees, it is our values that lead us to serve. Take advantage of the opportunity the CCC provides to further live these values.

Sincerely yours,

Dr. Angie Paccione
